

FRANKFORT ROUNDABOUT.

Entered at the post-office at Frankfort, Kentucky as second class mailable matter.

GEORGE A. LEWIS.
Editor and Publisher.

FRANKFORT, MAY 24, 1884.

The Common Pleas Court adjourned Saturday.

Mr. Jas. M. Saffell was elected Deputy Grand Commander of the State of Kentucky at the meeting of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar at Bowling Green yesterday.

The bar meeting which was held in this city Thursday to take action on the death of Judge Reid observed the following programme: It was called to order in the room of the Court of Appeals after the court had adjourned at 1:30. A chairman was selected and addresses were delivered by Judge A. E. Richards, on the part of the Supreme Court; by Judge J. Q. Ward, of Cynthiana; by Gov. Cantrill, of Georgetown and Gen. Rodman and Judge Duvall, of this city. Lawyers from all parts of the State were present.

Mr. David Nicol and Miss Nannie Owen, of this city, were married Thursday at the residence of Mr. Ed Coleman, in Louisville, Rev. George Darsie officiating. The happy couple returned to this city the same afternoon and have taken rooms at Mr. C. C. Furr's, on Third street.

The bride is a young lady very popular in this community and greatly admired for her amiable disposition while the groom is the junior member of the new lumber firm of Dunigan & Nicol, and a young man in every way worthy of the prize he has won. We congratulate David upon having secured so good a partner for life and wish them all the happiness imaginable.

Though banks may break and stocks go down,
And fortune prove most fickle,
One happy mortal's found,
Who's Owen but a Nicol.

It has been pretty well demonstrated of late in this country that any man, with money enough, no matter who he may be, can be elected to any office he may desire. Nearly one-half the voters in the county can be influenced by money, and it makes no difference to them who the man is; if he pays liberally they go for him solid. Is it not time the good men of the county were putting a stop to this sort of thing? Let the respectable portion of the county rise in their might and say that corruption and bribery have gone far enough; that they will not, under any circumstances, support any man for office who will give either money or whisky to a floater for his vote, and having said it let them stick to it like men.

The Kentucky Mutual Security Fund Company, an insurance organization in which the late Owen T. Richardson held a policy for five thousand dollars, have refused to pay the amount for which he was insured. In view of the fact that a thorough examination of his condition was made by the examining physician of the company, who passed him as a good subject, and the company accepted his money, it looks very much like an attempt to defraud his widow of what is justly due her. The company is a new one and this is the first death that has occurred among its members since its organization, and as they have refused to pay their first loss it would be well for those holding policies in it to drop them at once and take out new ones in old reliable companies.

The Democratic primary election Saturday resulted in the nomination of John W. Gaines for Sheriff over W. L. Collins, present incumbent, by a majority of 412, and of John S. Harrod for County Superintendent of Schools, present incumbent, over Chas. F. Gram by a majority of 429. The result to the race for Sheriff was a great surprise to many, though the Gaines men claim they knew it all the time. Heavy bets were made on Collins and in many instances odds were given, and his friends felt heavily. One Gaines man claims to have won fourteen hundred dollars, while others gathered in from five to one hundred dollars from various wagers. The boys from the county who had made bets were in town Monday setting up, and new hats were numerous on the streets, while several orders were left for new suits of clothes.
